The chain of events surrounding the Boston Bombings seems too extensive for the short time in which they occurred. From the first blast at 2:49 p.m. on April 15, 2013 to celebrations in the streets of Boston following Dzhokhar Tsarnaev's capture four days later, here's how that week's events unfolded according to prosecutors and media accounts.

April 15, 2013

2:49 p.m.: There is an explosion in front of Marathon Sports on Boylston Street, close to the Marathon finish line. Thirteen seconds later and a block away, there is a second explosion in front of Forum restaurant. Three people are killed, 282 are injured.

4:28 p.m.: New York Post claims a 20-year-old Saudi Arabian national is a suspect in the bombings and “in custody.” Post publisher and CEO Jesse Angelo touts the story as an “exclusive.” The paper also claims that a “law enforcement source confirmed” that “more than 12 people” were killed and “nearly 50” were injured. The report is denied by the police commissioner about an hour later.

Release Number: HQ-13-29

WASHINGTON – The U.S. Department of Homeland Security’s Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) announced that federal disaster assistance has been made available to Massachusetts to supplement commonwealth and local response efforts due to the emergency conditions resulting from explosions during the period of April 15-22, 2013.

The President’s action authorizes the Department of Homeland Security, Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA), to coordinate all disaster relief efforts which have the purpose of alleviating the hardship and suffering caused by the emergency on the local population, and to provide appropriate assistance for required emergency measures, authorized under Title V of the Stafford Act, to save lives and to protect property and public health and safety, and to lessen or avert the threat of a catastrophe in the counties of Middlesex, Norfolk, and Suffolk.

Specifically, FEMA is authorized to identify, mobilize, and provide at its discretion, equipment and resources necessary to alleviate the impacts of the emergency. Emergency protective measures, including direct federal assistance, will be provided at 75 percent federal funding.

James N. Russo has been named as the Federal Coordinating Officer for federal recovery operations in the affected area.

An “old sedan” pulls up behind “Danny’s” new Mercedes. A man gets out of the sedan, pulls a gun on Danny as he gets into his car, and says he “did” the bombing and “just killed a policeman in Cambridge.” Dzhokhar pulls up behind the car and gets in the car. "Heavy objects" are loaded into the Mercedes from the sedan. Dzhokhar uses Danny's ATM card to withdraw money.

April 19:

12:15 a.m.: According to Danny's account, the brothers decide to get gas and find an open Shell station. But they have to pay cash. Dzhokhar leaves the car to pay in the station and Tamerlan momentarily puts his gun down. Danny takes advantage of the moment to jump out of the car and run across the street to a Mobil station. The brothers drive away. Danny tells the clerk what happened and the clerk calls 911.

12:24 a.m.: Police have arrived at the Mobil. Danny tells them that they can track the location of his car through his iPhone and the car's satellite system.

12:41 a.m.: Police locate the Mercedes in Watertown. Dzhokhar is now driving a Honda Civic.

12:50 a.m.: Locals report sounds of gunfire in Watertown between the brothers and authorities who had tracked them. One witness says a man believed to be Tamerlan is standing on the street firing at officers.

When he runs out of bullets, police attempt to arrest him. Meanwhile Dzhokhar gets in the Mercedes and drives away, running over Tamerlan. He will later abandon the car and flee on foot. MBTA officer Richard Donohue is shot. He is seriously wounded, losing almost all of the blood in his body. He nearly dies, but recovers.

6:05 p.m.: Deval Patrick lifts the shelter-in-place order.

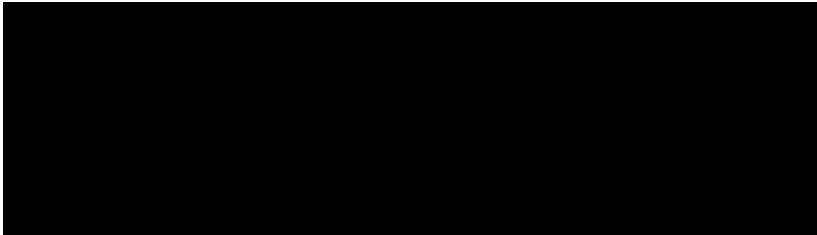

Between 6 and 7 p.m.: With the shelter-in-place order lifted, David Hennebury, of Watertown, goes to his backyard to check on his boat cover, which is loose. He does so, then heads back inside. But a “nagging feeling” prompts him to check on the boat a second time. He looks inside and sees blood and a body. He calls 911.

7:03 p.m.: Police once again ask Watertown residents to stay indoors.

7:30 p.m.: Dozens of law enforcement personnel, including SWAT team members, surround the boat and fire. A state police helicopter infrared camera captures images of Tsarnaev lying in the boat.

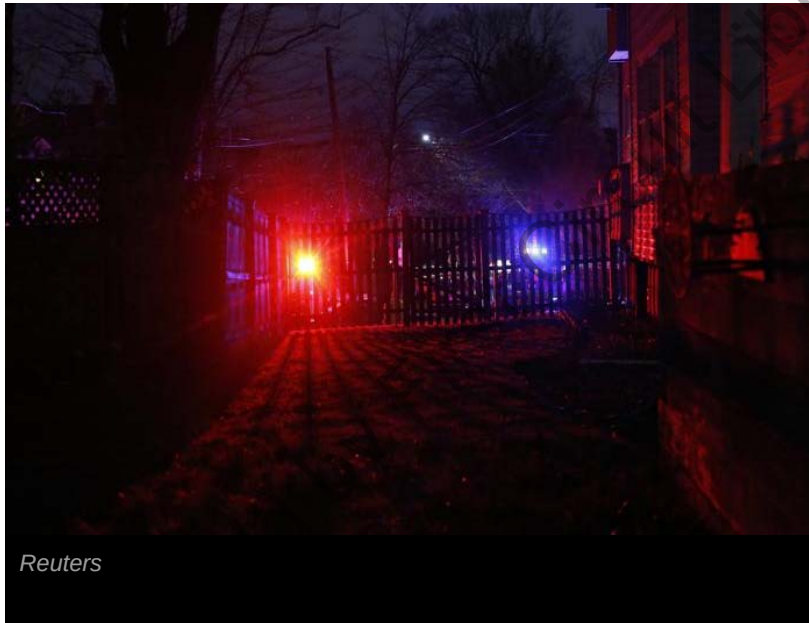

7:45 p.m.: At least a dozen people are evacuated from the area of “intense police activity.”

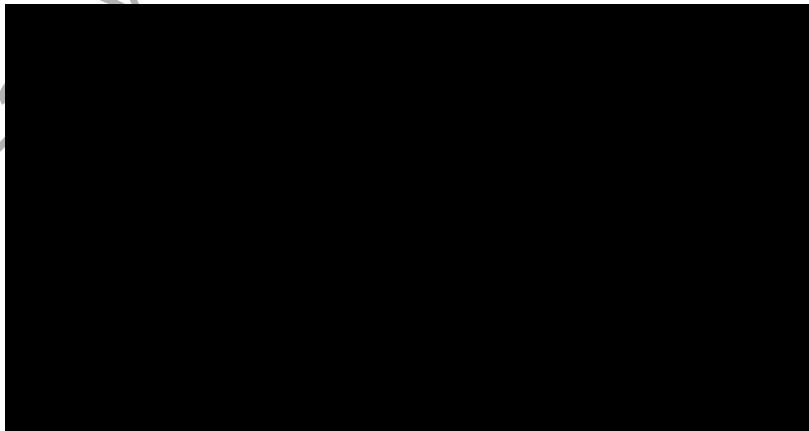

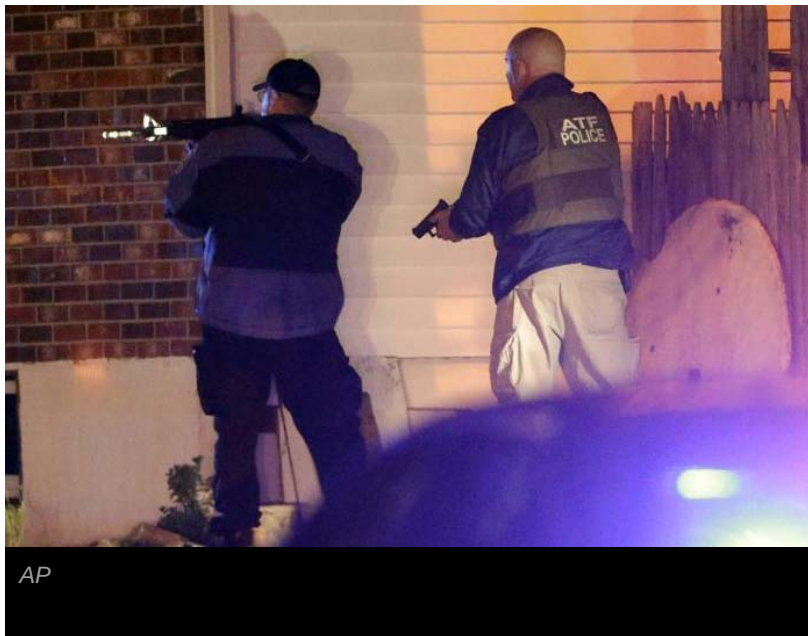

7:50 p.m.: Locals hear loud noises from “flash bang” grenades coming from the area where SWAT has engaged the suspect.

8:30 p.m.: Police repeatedly appeal to the suspect: “Come out on your own terms”; “We know you’re in there” and “Come out with your hands up.”

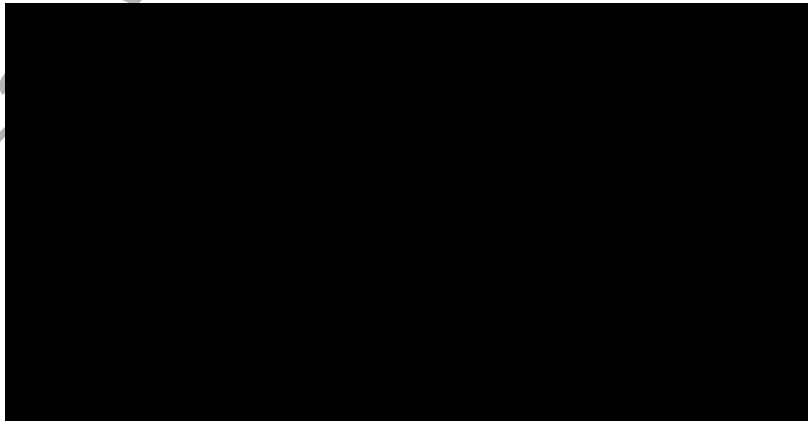

8:35 p.m.: The FBI execute a search warrant in New Bedford and take three people, two male and one female, into custody.

8:30-8:45 p.m.: Tsarnaev emerges from boat, lifting his shirt to show he is unarmed.

8:46 p.m.: Boston Police tweets "Suspect in custody. Officers sweeping the area. Stand by for further info."
