IV. Senses showing confusion with BOURDON *n.*²

[The earliest quotation for BOURDON *n.*² shows that word already confused with this. Apparently the notion was that the bass or undersong was 'heavier' than the air. The bourdon usually continued when the singer of the air paused at the end of a stanza, and (when vocal) was usually sung to words forming a refrain, being often taken up in chorus; hence sense 10. As the refrain often expresses the pervading sentiment or thought of a poem, this use became coloured by the notion of 'that which is carried' by the poem; its 'gist' or essential contents.]
